Ms. Cory holds a BA in English Literature and an M.A. in Education and currently works in higher education. In addition to her novels, Kim holds a significant portfolio of freelance publications, from newspaper articles, to magazine features, to historical articles about businesses for a comprehensive coffee table book.

Upon her right ankle is inked the following tattoo: cacoethes scribendi. It is Latin and she could make you look it up but she will share with you that it means 'insatiable urge to write.'

Kim Delmar Cory loves to spend time on retreats in rural hermitages where, in blissful quiet, she can write to her heart's content.

"All writers experience insecurity. When I'm about to ditch a work-in-progress, I revisit something I've written of merit-even if it was written years ago-and allow it to resonate. Then I plow forward with my project."
